PREAMBLE

Considering that in the United Nations Charter the peoples of the world resolved, notably, to establish conditions that would promote justice and international cooperation by fostering respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms;

Reaffirming, in the terms of the Dar-es-Salaam Declaration, the need to respect the fundamental principles enshrined in the United Nations Charter and the Constitutive Act of the African Union such as territorial integrity, sovereignty, non-interference and non-aggression;

Considering that respect for human rights is a fundamental guarantee against threats to the peace and internal security of States;

Determined to build a Great Lakes Region that is open to other regions of the continent by enhancing cooperation in the following priority areas: peace and security, democracy and good governance, economic development and regional integration, and humanitarian and social issues;

Deeply concerned by the upsurge in crime aggravated by impunity which together exacerbate a climate of insecurity in the Great Lakes Region;

Aware of the particular need for measures to combat impunity at the regional level and to ensure that all persons against whom there is evidence to show that they have committed offences in one of the countries of the Great Lakes Region shall be prosecuted and convicted;

Considering that for this purpose it is necessary for the Member States to extend reciprocal judicial assistance to one another in the matter of extraditing accused or convicted persons;

Considering that in order to facilitate the trial of the individuals referred to above, States must also cooperate with one another in respect of investigations, prosecutions and the exchange of information and documents;

Considering the existing bilateral agreements on extradition and cooperation in respect of investigations and prosecutions;

Considering the existence in the Member States of the Great Lakes Region police cooperation structures within the framework of the International Criminal Police Organization “ICPOINTERPOL”;

Article 4

Political Offences

1. Political refugees who are sentenced or prosecuted only for offences which are political in nature shall not be liable to extradition.

Article 5 Conditions of Extradition

1. In the case of an accused person, extradition shall be granted if the commission of the offence concerned is such that the laws of the Member State in which the person is found would justify his or her arrest and imprisonment as if the offence had been committed in the territory of such a Member State.
2. In the case of a convicted person, extradition shall be granted upon sufficient proof of conviction under the laws of the Member State in whose territory the convicted person is present.

Article 6

Non-extradition of Nationals

The Member States shall not be obliged to extradite their nationals. Where a request for the extradition of a national is made, the requested State shall submit the request to its competent authorities with a view to commence criminal proceedings against such a national if sufficient evidence to warrant such proceedings exists. The requesting State shall be informed of the outcome of any such proceedings.

Article 7

Procedure

1. Extradition procedures shall apply separately to accused and convicted persons.

4. In the case of a convicted person, the course of procedure for extradition shall be the same as in the case of an accused person, except that the judgment or conviction order furnished in support of the extradition request shall clearly specify the offence for which the person sought has been convicted and shall indicate the facts, the date, and the place of the judgment relating to such a conviction.
5. The evidence to be produced shall be such as to establish, in conformity with the laws of the requested State, that the person to be extradited was convicted of the offence with which he or she was charged.

3. With respect to the extradition of accused and convicted persons respectively, as soon as the necessary warrant of arrest or judgment has been rendered enforceable, the person sought to be extradited shall be handed over to the authority mandated for this purpose by the Government of the requesting State.

Article 8 Preventive Detention

1. The competent authorities of any Member State may take an accused or fugitive offender into preventive custody on the basis of denunciation, complaint, evidence, prosecution or conviction known to the competent authorities of such a Member State as would, in their informed opinion, have justified the said arrest if the offence had been committed, or the conviction had been secured, in the territory of their own State.

2. Such detention shall be notified to the competent authority of the Government on whose territory an alleged offence or offences were allegedly committed or whose courts passed a sentence of conviction.
3. In case of emergency, and in order to ensure prompt and effective punishment of the offender, any competent authority in one of the the Member States may send an urgent written message to a competent authority of another Member State, giving the details of the offence committed and requesting that the alleged perpetrator of the offence be taken into custody. Receipt of such an urgent message shall be confirmed in writing by the requested Member State within forty-eight hours.
4. Any person held in custody by virtue of paragraph 3 above shall be brought as quickly as possible before the competent judicial or administrative authority of the Member State concerned.
5. An accused or convicted person arrested in conformity with this Article shall be released if, within fifteen days from the receipt by a Member State of the notification of detention referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article, an extradition request is not duly made by such a State.

Article 9 Release

1. If the documents justifying the request for extradition have not been produced within thirty days from the request for arrest, the person detained shall be released.
2. If such documents have been produced but prove to be insufficient or incomplete, additional information needed shall be requested by the competent authority of the requested Member State to which the dossier has been referred. If the additional information requested has not been provided within thirty days of the date of receipt of the request, the person detained shall be released.
3. The person detained shall also be released if, within thirty days from the day when the person was made available to the requesting Member State, he or she has not been transferred to that State for any reason other than an act of force majeure, of which the requesting Member State shall provide evidence before the expiry of the said period.

Article 10

Signature or Certification of Authenticity

Warrants, depositions, statements and other evidence issued or obtained in the territory of one of the Member States, certified copies thereof, and certificates and judicial documents establishing the commission of the offence or the fact of conviction, shall be accepted as valid proof in the proceedings of another Member State if they are signed by or accompanied by attested authenticity of the competent authority of the Member State in which they were issued or obtained.

Article 11 Statutory Limitation

Extradition shall not take place if, since the commission of the acts charged, the commencement of proceedings or the conviction, prosecution or punishment has become timebarred under the legislation of the requested State.

Article 12

Concurrent Requests

1. If, in respect of the same offence, extradition is requested concurrently by several Member States, extradition priority shall be granted to the Member State in whose territory the offence was committed.
2. If the concurrent requests relate to different offences, extradition shall be granted to the Member State of which the individual sought is a national, or failing that, to the State seeking his or her extradition for the most serious offence.

Article 13

Conviction in the Requested Member State

If the individual sought is prosecuted or convicted by the courts of the requested Member State, his or her extradition may only take place on a temporary basis before the date of his or her release following the normal course of the extradition procedure laid down in the national legislation of the requested Member State. This shall enable him or her to answer the charges brought against him or her by the courts of the requesting Member State, provided that the said Member State shall return him or her to the Member State which extradited him or her so that he or she serves out his or her first sentence, or face prosecution before he or she is finally extradited to the requesting State.

Article 14

Seizures

1. Any item found in the possession of the individual sought at the time of arrest shall be seized and handed over with his or her person when the extradition takes place.
2. This transfer shall not be limited to items which are the product or instrument of the offence, but shall extend to all items which might serve as evidence, even in circumstances where the extradition cannot be accomplished as a result of the escape or the death of the individual sought.

3. The rights of third parties with regard to any such items shall nevertheless be preserved.
